PARENTS CRAVE RESPONSIBILITY IN TEENS

A recent study from Pew Research indicated that the number one quality parents — regardless of their age, race, political leanings, and religion — want their kids to have is responsibility. Parents were asked to rank the importance of 12 values kids need to learn, and 93% of parents responded that responsibility is “especially important.”

By using intentional and consistent discipline, parents can see their kids grow into responsible adults!

By Jim Liebelt

What Parents Can Do:

- Teaching responsibility requires parents to set clear expectations and enforce consistent consequences.
- Make sure consequences are appropriate to the “crime.”
- Decide which behaviors are worth battling over, and which are not.
- Include your teenager in creating the consequences. Creating consequences are something you do with your teenagers, not to them.
- Consistently follow through if your teenager has chosen the consequences.
- Administer the consequence in a friendly, rather than hostile, punitive manner. There is no need for nagging or lecturing.
- Separate your teenager from her behavior. Focus your attention back to positive things soon after the consequences are given.
- Never use a consequence that you cannot follow through on such as, “Either change your attitude or find another place to live.”

COLLIDE @7PM

COLLIDE IS OUR MID-WEEK GATHERING THAT MEETS EVERY WEDNESDAY AT 7:00PM IN THE QUAD ON THE 2ND FLOOR OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE CENTER.

A Word From The Word

Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

IN THEIR WORLD

UNBROKEN: A Movie 60 Years In The Making

This film about Olympic runner and war hero Louis Zamperini was nearly 50 years in the making. After Universal acquired rights to the story, the studio sat on the project for nearly 60 years. When Laura Hillenbrand's 2010 biography of Zamperini became a best seller, the movie finally found its legs.

Despite the PG-13 rating, parents should be aware that the movie's content and "spirit" are deeply troubling. Because the faith and forgiveness aspects are mentioned but not portrayed, the film borders on depressing. And sensitive moviegoers will struggle with the agonizing torture Zamperini endures.

That said, the film is a triumphant portrayal of strength, character, and patriotism. With faith references littered throughout, it's easy to find opportunities for discussions at home. And certainly Zamperini's strength of will can lead to conversations about trials and developing character through adversity and perseverance.

TEXTING WHILE DRIVING

Now that texting has become a main mode of communication, texting and driving is a major safety concern. Even popular celebrities and hit TV shows (for example, Adam Levine and The Voice) are bringing awareness to this serious issue.

At textinganddrivingsafety.com, you'll find tons of information and resources to help inform your kids about the dangers of driving while texting. While you're there, take a look at the alarming infographics and statistics.

“Worse than drunk driving”

The site also provides an agreement to not text while driving. Print out a copy of the contract and have your teen drivers sign it. And remember to set a good example for them by keeping your cell phone safely stashed while you're behind the wheel.
